CONTROLLING THE WATER LEVEL IN THE SENILLAR WETLAND

This week the environmental protection office started to work in the Senillar. They are regulating and controlling the water level by installing sewer ports and similar options. This will help to regulate the water and increase the water level. The scientists of the Valencian University started their limnology study last autumn and are trying to find out more about its hydrological behavior. The work is being done respecting the regulations of the specialists.
